If the city or township your project is located is not listed, then one of the listed WDs, WMC or WMO is the LGU. Consult the Metro Water Management Authorities Map on the BWSR website for management authority boundaries. If your property is near a watershed management authority boundary, consult the watershed management authority's website for a more precise map or otherwise contact them directly to determine if your property lies within their boundary.

LGU by County

Hennepin

If the city or township your project is located in is not listed, then one of the listed WDs, WMCs or WMOs is the LGU. Consult the Metro Water Management Authorities Map on the BWSR website for management authority boundaries. If your property is near a watershed management authority boundary, consult the watershed management authority’s website for a more precise map or otherwise contact them directly to determine if your property lies within their boundary.

Ramsey

If the city or township your project is located in is not listed, then one of the below listed watershed districts or watershed management organization is the LGU. Consult the Metro Water Management Authorities Map on the BWSR website for management authority boundaries. If your property is near a watershed management authority boundary, consult the watershed management authority’s website for a more precise map or otherwise contact them directly to determine if your property lies within their boundary.

Washington

If the city or township your project is located in is not listed, then a listed watershed district or the Washington County Conservation District (WCD) is the LGU. Consult the Metro Water Management Authorities Map on the BWSR website for management authority boundaries. If your property is near a watershed management authority boundary, consult the watershed management authority’s website for a more precise map or otherwise contact them directly to determine if your property lies within their boundary.
